State of the Station

KEPW has been hard at work these last few months to increase audio quality, improve our programming, and decrease technical difficulties. In that spirit we recently installed two new computers in our studio, thanks to several incredible donors who made it possible through their financial and technical assistance. While this process has not come without challenges we are excited to be making great strides toward an even more pleasurable experience for our listeners. We sincerely thank everyone for their patience and support during this process and especially want to express deep appreciation to our all volunteer staff for their help in making KEPW an even more excellent local resource for our community.

Almost 40 locally produced shows can be heard throughout Eugene Springfield and beyond with excellent national programming as well. Our KEPW Youth Radio Project now in its 4th year continues to serve our future leaders by empowering them with valuable skills and a place for their voices to be heard. KEPW's volunteer newsteam is moving toward its 3rd year making local independent news. We are proud as we are accomplishing our mission to be a place for voices otherwise left unheard.

Please send your comments, suggestions, and constructive criticism to stationmanager@kepw.org or call 541-831-0622. Feedback is how we learn what we are doing right and what we can do better. Stay tuned as we continue to improve and grow with your help!"

Peace Luv & Solidarity,

Jana

Get to Know... Deadish with Jeff Harrison

The Grateful Dead lives every Thursday night at 9:00 on Deadish: Searching For the Sound. The music takes many different forms, but all are "deadish." In early 2019 KEPW decided a Grateful Dead show would be a good idea—this is, after all, Eugene, and we only had two other such shows on other stations: clearly we needed more! I was invited to do it, and what an honor! But I asked if it could be not just the Dead, but anything in that vein—i.e., "deadish." So that's what it is!

You'll hear Kimock, Phil Lesh, Hot Tuna, Allman Brothers, Pink Floyd, Phish, String Cheese—etc. Mostly Grateful Dead, though, and often a concert from the same date as the radio broadcast—flashbacks in time. I encourage requests, and enjoy chatting with callers.

Feel free to contact me any time at harrisonj@lanec.edu.

I first saw the Grateful Dead in 1972, and enjoyed many (don't ask!) shows thereafter. Zero became my favorite band when I first saw them in '86, and I've kept up the Kimock connection. A big part of the Grateful Dead and Zero life was tape trading—so I ended up with a couple of walls and many drawers full of cassettes. Nowadays, though, people trade hard drives—and most of what I play comes from my 12 TB drive full of sounds. That's where I go searching.

One friend said the show reminds him of the free-form programs in the early days of FM. It's not much talk, and two hours of great music—all good stuff, as the Grateful Dead's promos used to say.

Listen to Deadish every Thursday night from 9-11pm on KEPW!

Why Listen to KEPW?

If you love classical music, you know your default radio station. If you're a sports enthusiast, you know your default radio station. If you like "oldies" music, you know where to automatically tune. As a child, did you like the same comforting bedtime story every night?

If any of these, stick with familiar MSM faces and entertainment, comforting MSM news voices, and the simple, official, ever-repeated narratives to keep you firmly seated anonymously within a vast audience applauding in unison on cue.

But if you want less predictability, unexpected pleasures and unexpected information, and want to see behind the stage curtain, KEPW will often be the right station for you.

As a Pacifica Radio affiliate, we draw from their broad menu of programming plus lots of locally produced shows. These include local, Northwest and global music, jazz, news and public affairs from non-mainstream sources and perspectives, and discussions of local issues by local people.

Just set your dial at 97.3 FM and see what happens.
